

A note to let you know that I disagree with your attempt to outlaw the m.a.p. pricing guidelines used by the record industry to protect small independent businesses. I know that m.a.p. pricing is used in other industries, like the electronics industry (check out Bose), for the same purposes. We as independent record stores rely on music as the sole of our income, we don't sell music below cost to attract customers hoping that they will buy a new dryer (best buy/circuit city) or some toothpaste (wal-mart). I feel that you probably know very little about a huge industry such as ours; therefore, you should leave it alone. M.A.P. is not the enemy of fair pricing for consumers; truthfully, a retailer can sell music for any amount they choose.
